Hi Steve,

I apologize for emailing this to you at work; however, I've never been successful in getting responses from your other email. I think that you are aware that since last September, I have limited my dealings with Andy. I cut off relationship again with him I think in October or November when I realized that he was consuming high levels of marijuana. Each time I cut off any relationship with him, he finds a way to creep back into my life. I have maintained a detailed record of all documentation relating to Andy; this was done for several reasons. I had been scammed previously and did not want to travel that route again. That's why when you asked me last spring to come aboard, I asked if you had seen any sign of drug abuse or any sign of Andy being a scam. The second reason is that Andy asked me to maintain a record because he felt that his life would make a good book or movie.

The reason that I suspected Andy of being a scam is because he harnessed the same traits as the person that scammed me before. For example, he only uses first names of people; he makes a point of isolating the various players to ensure they do not speak to each other; and scam artists become extremely agitated when they feel one is getting close to figuring them out. Steve, it took me a while to believe that you were real and it was quite obvious to me in the beginning that the emails that I was copied in on initially were not from you. Since I had not seen any of your writing, it wasn't until much later that I realized that the emails were not written by you. After further investigation, I realized that many of the items that I had written about and placed in the document that I created in WIX were not legitimate. The concepts sounded good; however, I haven't seen any finished products. I really became concerned last fall when Andy slowly tried to come back into my life.

I think that it was in November that I decided to throw Andy a carrot and he took it. I sent him a link about violence that was occurring in Mexico. A few days later, I was copied in on an email that Andy sent to Leonard stating that he was in the same town that appeared in the link in Mexico to see how he could help. Initially, he contacted me stating that he was on vacation in New Mexico with his mom and her finance. Suddenly, the trip became a dry run for the new car cover that he had been testing. Then I began getting calls from Andy stating that the testing was going well, that they had been in hell storms, they had to tow the Mustang and a bunch of other lies. Suddenly, I received a photograph of a picture that was supposed to have been taken at a Wendy's and it was quite obvious that the photograph was taken in the United States and the car cover was probably downloaded from the Internet.

Andy really became annoyed with me for not participating in a meeting with Leonard, Andy's Mom and Shar. I had considered calling into the meeting; initially, I did most of the communicating with Leonard regarding the bloggers. Leonard warned Andy early on to stop blogging and I explained to Andy (based on conversation with Leonard) that Leonard would have to defend Andy's character in front of a judge and we both urged Andy to stop blogging. Unfortunately, I could never get this through his head. When I found out that he had made up Zeb the investigator, the homeless person, and Gary the busman (that he referred to as Gary Thebus), there was no way I would allow myself to appear in court unless I was willing to perjure myself.

In reviewing my email over the past few weeks, I thought that I had carefully gone through all of the messages. I then decided to review all of the messages in the sent file. In doing so, there were messages sent to an Adam (I don't know who this is); a John (I guess this is Daryl's old boss from Omniture whom I may have met when I visited Daryl's office), Mitch Thrower, and someone from Bump. I never drafted, approved of, nor did I send these emails. This was my first time seeing these. This is not my writing style nor would I have ever sent out something so sloppy. In one email, he pretends that he is asking for my advice and then I answer it in another email. Steve, this is not me. There was also an email in my 'Sent' file that I sent to the 'Wiserman.' I did not send this as well. I saw another message from Cory that Andy had sent. The other thing that was alarming was a message pretending to be written by Daryl on Scam.com. I know Daryl's handwriting and this blog definitely was not written by Daryl; it was obviously written by Andy. I shall send these to you in separate emails.

Andy has always made a point of telling me that he only keeps you around because he needs a 'White Boy.' I am beginning to see other young men enter into his camp and I would not want anyone to get involved with Andy. Are you aware that John's bother and his friend from Social Fuel are only eighteen years of age and were still in high school? These are nice young men and so is Dustin. I hope that you agree that they need to be protected.

As for Andy, I am not concerned about the video and I do hope that he and John Steer (if John is involved) know that it is illegal to tape someone without their permission. I can and probably will bring legal charges against Andy with the FCC as he openly admitted to recording our conversation. I already have the forms. I also have an email where he illegally recorded the person from Bump. If he indeed taped the entire conversation of the two of us, it is definitely more damaging to him than to me unless he altered them. I am now getting messages at home from someone pretending to be a collection agency.

The messages don't mention me by name; however, I know that it is Andy because it is the same 800 number as Wiser Technology.

If you would like to discuss further, I can be reached at home today and possibly tomorrow. My number is 252-XXX-XXXX.

Regards,

Beckie

Hi Steve,

The phone number that I usually talk to you on is not taking messages and I can't find the other number. Andy called me yesterday morning and informed me of the great progress that you are making concerning the e-cig and BuzzWiser. I would like to be able to duplicate what you are doing on the East Coast. I have a potential sales team in mind as well as businesses that I would like to target; however, I am hesitant in speaking with anyone until I have the go ahead. There are also some administrative details that I would like to discuss with you as well.

Please give me a call as soon as feasible at 252-303-0007. Hope your allergies haven't gotten you down. It's 91 degrees here; last week we had frost.

Beckie

Hi Steve,

Left you a voice mail. Guess you are snowed under. By the end of last week, Dustin was extremely upset with Andy. I spoke with him last night and he had calmed down. Dustin believes in the Xtagged concept. I think we can all agree that the site needs help. I have my vision, which I discussed with you last week. I found out last night that Dustin and I share the same vision. My background is that of a Systems Analyst and Dustin is extremely gifted on the technical end and knows how to pull the project together. In speaking with him last night, I learned that he has completed a great portion of the project and has the resources lined up to finish it. However, there is the matter of funding.

I feel that Andy is upset with Dustin and both he and Dustin could probably time some time out. They both probably have legitimate reasons for being upset. From what I was told, Dustin was expecting an airline ticket to be provided on a certain day and he planned accordingly. I have the feeling that Andy is juggling funds and trying to hold things together as best as he can and any deviation or questions of his integrity by others further enhances his distrust and suspicion. This is probably a communication issue that went terribly wrong.

The fact is, we are all probably running on empty and burning midnight oil and any distraction is aggravating at best. My question to you is, can Xtagged afford to let Justin get away? When I spoke to you and Andy two weeks ago, you both felt that he was extremely valuable. You seemed to realize that Justin is great at touting his horn; however, you referred to him as a Teddy Bear. Other than swallowing one's pride, what would it take to rescue him and is he worth rescuing? In talking to him last night, I think there is a small chance that he would return to the project if handled correctly. Let's face it, we all can be pushed to the point of no return. Let's not forget that our overall goal and objective is make Xtagged successful and in doing so, we may have to take some U-turns. I truly believe that if Andy had the opportunity to see and understand Justin's vision, his reaction would be positive. Although it probably is not necessary, I do feel that it would be beneficial if Dustin took a trip to Denver. I know that he was really looking forward to seeing you and your spouse.

The other question is, does Xtagged have any funding for development? If not, would Xtagged be open to investors or is Xtagged still looking to E-cig to fund the project? I know that I mentioned to Andy, and I perhaps brought it to your attention as well, that my brother Joseph raises funding for start-up companies. He just raised an additional $6M for his current company from an investor in Lebanon. I think that he will be back in the country by the end of this week. He is somewhat familiar with Xtagged and has spoken with Andy on at least two occasions. If Andy is looking to raise $500K-$1M, it might be worth talking to Joseph and getting his opinion. I can't promise that Joseph would be interested in devoting time and energy to Xtagged. I can say that he is extremely trustworthy, wife comes from a wealthy family, and he has been extremely supportive of me. He is also extremely annoyed with Daryl and hasn't spoken to what used to be his favorite nephew since I left Utah. I did mention this to Dustin last night; however, I also expressed my loyalty to Andy. Regardless of how Andy aggravates me at times, I still love him and consider him my son. It's unfortunate that we are not in the same location; communicating by telephone, texting, and email is not only inconvenient; it falls short in terms of communication as well as interpretation. I look forward to hearing from you soon. The weather is beautiful here and in the mid eighties. My niece just called and it is in the mid nineties in the Annapolis area. My car is loaded with pollen.

Love,

Beckie

Subject: CONFIDENTIAL - X-tagged.com Power Point w/ Word Document Explanation

Hey Becky,

I'm sorry we've been out of contact for a bit. My internet went down and since we are in the middle of switching company phones, I could not check my email on my mobile device either. Here is something I put together a couple months ago. I am in the middle of breaking it up into sections and adding sections for new endeavors like Buzz Wiser, Smoke Wiser, etc. Throughout the word doc you will find references to slides and footnotes. The footnotes lead to links that show different youtube videos further detailing what is being addressed and the slide numbers refer to the corresponding picture on the power point presentation which offers visuals to the text for easier understanding. I am in the middle of splitting it up into different sections for the FAQ portion of the website or anything else we might need it for. I'm meeting with Andy later this afternoon to discuss marketing strategy for Buzz Wiser and Smoke Wiser. Have you talked to him about anything concerning that? I have also been in constant contact with Dustin (Dak). We are looking to get him out to denver within a week and we will be working on the budget you requested. Give me a call if you need anything or if the attached documents result in any questions. Thank you!

Steve

My introduction to Steve whom I felt did not exist:

Subject: Hello Beckie, this is Steve Klemark, Xtagged

Hi Beckie,

It was nice to finally meet you over the phone. I am looking forward to meeting you in person in the future. I have been putting together a lot of paperwork over the past months on Xtagged and would really love to look over the mission statement, job descriptions and anything else you have put together. I have a comprehensive 20+ page review on the entirety of Xtagged and the majority of BTP (it does need to be updated though). I am currently working on a shorter, more concise version to easily explain our missions. This is where I have been getting caught up because I am having a difficult time condensing the information. Let me know if there is anything I can work on to help you get things together. I can not tell you how happy I am to have someone like you onboard. It has been needed for a while. Also, let me know if you want anything that I've put together.

LinkedIn Recommendations

Steve R Klemark III has endorsed your work as CEO at Buzz/Wiser, BTP.

Dear Rebecca,

I've written this recommendation of your work to share with other LinkedIn users.

Details of the Recommendation: "It was truly an honor to work directly under Mrs. Dunn (I was CIO, she was CEO). I have never encountered an individual such as herself that possesses the life experiences and raw talent she does while maintaining a professional environment for everyone around and always putting the company first. Mrs Dunn supervised the merger that formed Wiser Technology with intelligence, grace and perfection, then voluntarily stepped down into her better suited position as Business Development Specialist of Wiser Tech. This was by no means a demotion, but a sacrifice on her part that landed her in a position where her talents can be used to the fullest while opening up a position that is less specialized (CEO). Since Mrs Dunn is expertly specialized in a number of fields relating to business development, everyone felt she was better suited there. If she preforms half as well in her new position as she did as CEO, our company is truly destined for greatness. Thank you for all your seemingly unlimited help, support, patience and understanding. I know it was not easy with Andy and I to look after. Well done. Contact me with ANY questions concerning Mrs. Dunn's preformance, but don't think of offering her a job. She's ours!"
